sort of a collection of, you know, miscellany later like this.
You build a record for you got the deposition. If you've got it you show me.

All right. And then I have documents -- I'm sorry, records regarding employment of Casa Linne, L-I-N-N-E. This looks like a non-issue I think? No? Issue or non-issue at this point?

MR. RATNER: Your Honor, (indiscernible) at the last conference. We said --

THE COURT: You provide a statement but you're not claiming economic damages, right?

MR. RATNER: And I told them my word is good.
We're not claiming economic damages. I put it in a letter. I put it in an e-mail. We're not claiming economic damages.
And now it's on the record in court. You're not claiming economic damages.

THE COURT: So I think that issue is a non-issue.
Is that correct, counsel?

MR. CUCCARO: In part. I think specifically with respect to Casa Linne the economic damages representation from plaintiff's counsel probably does take care of it. We're seeking additional documentation relating to plaintiff's income which would include her 2013 and 2014 tax return. And those are documents that we think are relevant because the
